RAPID IMPROVEMENT

But It Had No Effect Yesterday

in Stimulating Speculative Ventures. SOME STRIKING ADVANCES NEW YORK, January 7.—There was a contraction of business in stocks at the Stock Exchange to-day. In a group of high-priced stocks there were some striking advances. Evidences of the rapid improvement in the money situation continued to manifest themselves, but they were not so stimulating to the speculator as they were yesterday. The important point about the reflux off interior bank funds to New York bank deposits, which has now set in in a plentiful stream, is that the loaning capacity of the banks making the deposits is not impaired by it, although the available credits of the New York central reserve banks are greatly expanded by it. The speculative realizing proved the dominant factor in the day's market, and the sfocks that were most active showed a majority of declines at the end of the day. COTTON MARKETS.

NEW YORK. January 7.—The cotton marker cased of after a steady opening, closing steady at a net decline of 9 points. Soles for the day were estimated at 150,000 beles. The market opened steady at an advance of $50 points as a result of higher Liverpool cables, larger English spot sales and buillah reports as to Southern spot conditions. The morning papers also contained reassuring reports as to the general trade situation, but there seemed to be nothing buillish enough to stimulate fresh buying for long, account, and after a few minutes of inegularity the market developed casher spedency under scattered realizing or liquidution, the lowest level being reached in the lister trading, and the close being at practically the bottom. Possibly the rumors of turther financial difficulties in railroad cirnist had some influence on the decline, but my reagently speaking the depression was attributed to moderate selling, chiefly (or long account in a narrow market, and in misparation for the census report expected on. DECREASE IN REVENUE

Southern Receipts for Fourth Week December Show Big Loss. southern Receipts for Fourth Week in December Show Big Loss.

Estimated earnings of the Southern Railway for the fourth week in December show a decrease in revenue of $191.528 over the corresponding week of 1906. It had been known for some time that the decrease in railroad husiness—senerally during the month of December was greater than the loss in November. To meet this condition the management of the Southern has adopted measures for retrenchment and relief and has very generally cut down the expenses in order to prevent more serious trouble. A natural result was the curtailment of the passenger service, and, beginning with the second waek in December, the figures will mobably show more prosperous conditions.
